Dr. Christopher Hauser (Assistant Professor, Philosophy Department)

I received an Affordable Learning Implementation Grant for my PHIL 120 (Introduction to Philosophy) course.   I taught two sections of this course, in which a total of 70 students (35 per section) were enrolled. I wanted to design this course around a particular set of topics and questions

6. Excerpts from Galen Strawson's Real Materialism and Other Essays – library-owned ebook
7. Excerpts from J.P. Moreland and William Lane Craig's Philosophical Foundations for a Christian Worldview – library-owned ebook

Gary Watson, or Gary McCleod, contemporary philosophies, including Wright, Ryan Byerly, Harry Frankfurt, Gary Watson, and Susan Wolf – available through

World

C3. A third survey question asked students to respond to the following statement: " The readings, powerpoints, video clips, and other course materials used in this class were effective and appropriate for furthering my understanding of the course's content." Students could give one of five responses